

PEARSON ADDRESSES GRADUATES

1900 to receive degrees, diplomas at Spring Convocation ceremonies

We stand on guard... One of McGill's less inspiring pieces of statuary, both aesthetically and symbolically, was the projected target of a Victoria day separatist demonstration. Thanks to decisive action by the Montreal police force the demonstration was arrested while still in an embryonic stage, and the statue suffered no indignity. An article about the May 24 observances appears on page 7.

Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson will deliver an Address this morning, at the annual Spring Convocation.

With 1900 undergraduate and graduate students receiving diplomas and degrees, this is the largest graduating class in the history of the university.

Mr. Pearson is one of six men who will receive honorary doctorates from McGill. Two senior professors will receive the title of Emeritus Professor.

The Convocation ceremonies are scheduled to take place in Molson Stadium at 10 am. If it rains, two ceremonies will be held in the Sir Arthur Currie Gymnasium, beginning at 10 am and 3 pm. Chancellor Howard Ross and Principal Robertson will preside at the ceremonies.

Chancellor Ross will "cap" the graduates as the deans of the faculties announce them. A total of 1,675 degrees and 225 diplomas will be awarded—194 more than last year.

As usual, Arts has the largest number of graduates, 165 men and 195 women. The degree of Bachelor of Science will be awarded to 269 men and 86 women, and 80 students—only three of them women—will receive Commerce degrees.

A total of 334 students will receive graduate degrees.

The Faculty of Medicine will award 189 degrees to medical students, nurses and therapists, and 182 diplomas.

Engineering has 162 graduates, slightly down from last year's 167. This includes 14 architecture graduates.

During the afternoon, Principal and Mrs. Robertson will hold a garden party on campus for graduates, their parents, and husbands or wives.

The actual diplomas will be given out at the Registrar's Office after the ceremony, between noon and 5 pm. Graduating students will be asked to sign receipts for their diplomas and therefore should call at the office in person.

Invitations have already been sent out to the graduating students to attend the Convocation dinner and ball tonight. The dinner and dance will begin at 8:15 p.m. in the Sheraton Mount-Royal Hotel.

Six get honorary doctorates

Prime Minister Pearson and Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau are the two political figures who will receive honorary doctorates from McGill today.

One artist, actor Jean Gascon, and three educators will also receive doctorates.

Sir Douglas Logan, Principal of the University of London; and Dr. John Dickey, President of Dartmouth College, will receive the degree of LL.D., like the Prime Minister and Mayor Drapeau.

Dr. Gordon Patterson, director of the University of Toronto's Institute of Aerospace Studies, will receive the D. Sc. degree and Mr. Gascon will be awarded a D. Litt.

Mr. Pearson

Lester B. Pearson, Canada's Prime Minister since April 22, 1963, has been one of Canada's outstanding civil servants and diplomats, having served as Canadian Ambassador to the United States, as Chairman of NATO and as President of the Seventh Session of the General Assembly of the United Nations.

He was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1957.

He was elected Leader of the Liberal Party and of the Opposition at the leadership convention of 1958.

In 1951, he became Chairman of NATO. In 1952, he was elected President of the Seventh Session of the General Assembly of the United Nations.

Mayor Drapeau

M. Drapeau was born in Montreal. He attended the Université de Montréal Faculty of Law and was admitted to the Montreal Bar in 1943.

In 1950, he was called to act as public prosecutor in the police enquiry and in 1954 was elected Mayor of Montreal for the first time.

In September 1960, he founded, with a group of city councillors, the Montreal Civic Party and won the election in October of that year.

In October 1962, he was re-elected Mayor of Montreal.

Scholefield, Quastel head new research units

Dr. P. G. Scholefield, McGill Professor of Biochemistry, will crown 16 years of interest in cancer research on June 1 when he becomes director of the new McGill University Cancer Research Unit.

The University and the National Cancer Institute of Canada will provide the operating funds for the unit. It will be located in the new McIntyre Medical Sciences Centre.

Another new research group, the McGill Unit of Cell Metabolism, will be created the same day under the direction of Professor J. H. Quastel, head of the McGill-Montreal General Hospital Research Institute since its inauguration in 1948.

Dr. Scholefield, 39, has been assistant director since 1959 of the McGill-Montreal General Hospital Research Institute where, in association with the director, Dr. Quastel, he has specialized in the study of the chemical definition of the life processes of cancer cells. These studies are of basic importance to the understanding of cancer and to the design of new drugs for treatment.

The McGill Unit will be the fifth organization of its kind in Canada.

The two units, which will be situated in the new McIntyre Medical Sciences Building, are designed to replace the McGill-Montreal General Hospital Institute, which has achieved an international reputation for its research in the field of biochemistry.

Both units spring from the work originated in the McGill-Montreal General Hospital Research Institute. The Cell Metabolism Unit will continue the main lines of work of the Institute in the fields of cancer research, research on the central nervous system, and related fields of medical research. It will be carried out by post-doctoral investigators under the general direction of Professor Quastel.

Professor Quastel, who is Professor of Biochemistry at McGill University and who helped to start the McGill-Montreal General Hospital Research Institute 18 years ago, has made notable contributions not only in research, but in the training of research personnel. Over 70 students have taken their Ph.D. degrees under him and at least 300 scientific articles have been published by members of the Institute he helped create.

His new unit will have accommodation for senior investigators working on various aspects of cell metabolism with particular reference to medical problems. It will have its quarters adjacent to the Cancer Research Unit, both units occupying the seventh floor of the medical sciences building.

Graduate Faculty awards 16 grants

The Faculty of Graduate Studies and Research recently awarded 16 fellowships and scholarships to students from the Province of Quebec.

Names of the winners and their areas of study are as follows:

Samuel Bronfman Fellowship in Economics: G. D'Aoust, Valleyfield;

Dafoe Foundation Fellowship: R. A. Yellon (History) Montreal;

Alexander Mackenzie Fellowship in Political Science: M. D. Wallace, Pointe Claire; Northern Electric Fellowship: K. N. Dannacker, (Electrical Engineering) Montreal; Solvay Fellowship: D. L'Esperance, (Divinity) Montreal;

McConnell Memorial Fellowships: John Robin Allen, Montreal, Meteorology; Janet C. Blachford, Montreal, English; Ronald E. Cape, Montreal, Biochemistry; Janice M. Gross, Montreal, Political Science; Steven A. Malowany, Montreal, Electrical Engineering; Maurice Manel, Montreal, Sociology; Jacob Rozanis, Montreal, Bacteriology; and Elizabeth B. Shannon, St. John's, Quebec, Psychology.

University Graduate Fellowship: D. C. Gilmore, Montreal, Mechanical Engineering. University Graduate Scholarships: N. A. Mayerovitch, Montreal, Human Communications Disorders; A. E. Held, Montreal, Physics.

McGill creates new therapy degrees

Increasing demand for physical and occupational therapists in Quebec and the rest of Canada has resulted in the creation of new degree courses in McGill University's School of Physical and Occupational Therapy.

Three degrees will replace the present Diplomas and B. Sc. degree in Physical and Occupational Therapy.

Commencing next September, qualified students with junior matriculation will be admitted to four-year courses leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Physical Therapy or Bachelor of Occupational Therapy and a five-year course leading to the degree Bachelor of Science (Physical Therapy).

The current syllabus, which is being replaced, provides for the Diploma in either physical or occupational therapy, awarded after a three-year course of study, and the B.Sc. (P. and O.T.) degree after five years of study.

Vallance, Mawson win writing awards

Gail Vallance has been awarded first prize of $75 for her short story "Emily" in the annual Chester Macnaghten Creative Writing Competition which is open to all undergraduates at McGill University.

Second prize of $40 was awarded to Anthony Richard Mawson for his short story "The Occupant".

FRIDAY, MAY 28, 1965

Miss Vallance obtained her Class II teaching diploma from the Institute of Education at Macdonald College. She transferred to McGill last autumn and has just completed her second year in Arts.

Mawson came to McGill in 1962, on a Goldsmiths' Scholarship Grant, from Kings Langley, Hertfordshire, England. He has just completed third year in Arts.

YOUNG IDEAS

TAMPAX

Funny how associated ideas grow. You start out thinking about kookie little hats that are beginning to catch on in your set—and then you start thinking about something else that's caught on—except with you.

Tampax internal sanitary protection was invented by a doctor for all women, married or unmarried, active or not. It comes with an especially smooth applicator to make insertion swift and sure. It's made with pure surgical cotton to be soft and safe. It has a waterproof removal cord, lock-stitched so it can't come loose.

You already recognize the advantages of Tampax—otherwise you wouldn't be thinking about it. We just want to give you the reassurance of how well the product is made.

Dear Friend:

To fill a growing need of college and high school students, we shall again hold Summer School. We give intensive shorthand and typewriting courses in which our method of individual instruction permits you to enter at any time, progress at your own pace, and leave when you have acquired the proficiency you need.

At college level, typing helps you to turn out clear, long-lasting notes, theses, and term papers. For work after college, it is, of course, almost a necessity. Students desirous of taking our complete Secretarial Course and starting now will finish in early spring, when the demand for office staff is highest.

Summer classes run from 9 to 3, Monday through Friday. For further information, write or telephone RE:7-5220.

Sincerely yours,

Fee negotiations continue

Joint student-administration discussion of the proposed fee increase for 1965-66 has failed, to date, to produce a mutually agreeable solution.

PRESIDENT-ELECT
SHOLZBERG

Two meetings have been held since the end of examinations.

Students' Society President-elect Sharon Sholzberg described the proposal the students have advanced:

"The revenue for operating expenses is deficient by $1,000,000. According to the University, a $100 fee increase per student is the only possible source of additional income.

"The student representatives proposed as an alternate solution that the $1,000,000 be taken from the $16,000,000 unrestricted portion of the University's endowment fund.

"There are two justifications for this proposal:

"First, the annual interest on the $16,000,000 would be reduced only slightly, from $800,000 to $750,000. This $50,000 reduction in income would not appreciably affect the total revenue for the University's operating expenses, which is about $20,000,000.

"Secondly, even if the $16,000,000 fund were to be depleted in the near future, the amount of money needed for higher education is not $16,000,000 — it is hundreds of millions.

"To think that $16,000,000 will keep McGill financially secure, or to think that $800,000 in annual interest is the answer to McGill's financial difficulties, is to fail to realize both the long run problem and the long run solution.

"The problem is accessibility to higher education for all who have the ability.

PRINCIPAL ROBERTSON

ity. The solution is support of education by the public sector. Therefore, McGill's $16,000,000 is very insignificant when seen in this larger perspective."

The administration is not reported to have greeted this proposal with excessive enthusiasm.

The student committee formed to fight the fee increase plans to meet with Education Minister Paul Gelin-Lajoie in July, after which letters will be sent to all students informing them of the current situation, and of concrete plans to combat the increase in the fall.

HONORARY DEGREES...

studied theatre in Paris after abandoning a medical career.

Mr. Gascon returned to Canada in 1951 at which time he became co-founder of Le Theatre du Nouveau Monde, assuming the company's artistic direction. In 1961, Mr. Gascon was Founder-Director of the National Theatre School of Canada. He has also spent several seasons with the Stratford Shakespearean Festival.

Sir Douglas Logan

Sir Douglas Logan has been Principal of the University of London since 1948. Previous to this appointment, he served with the Ministry of Supply, 1940 to 1944, and as Clerk of the Court, University of London, 1944 to 1947. He is also President of the British Universities Sports Board.

John Dickey

John Sloan Dickey became President of Dartmouth College in 1945 at the age of 37. Before returning to his alma mater, he had a distinguished career in the fields of law and public service, notably in the State Department, where he was Director of the Office of Public Affairs.

Gordon Patterson

Gordon N. Patterson founded the Institute for Aerospace Studies at University of Toronto, in 1949.

He participated extensively in improvements in the performance of the Spitfire fighter, and in 1939, he accepted an appointment as head of the Aerodynamics Section of the Aeronautical Research Laboratory, Melbourne, Australia, where he initiated the development of aerodynamic facilities in that country.

Convocation issues

Convocation Day never fails to provide rich pickings for the connoisseurs of mixed metaphor and tired rhetoric. Amid the plethora of embarkations on life's path and settlements-out on great adventure — suggesting a cross between Young Werther and Jack in the Beanstalk — the graduate, might prefer the rather chilling formula adopted by the tutor in an Oxford college who, on the great day, grasped the hand of one of his favourite charges and barked: "Well, from now on it's a straight run to the grave."

Traditional attitudes to the act of graduating seem designed to emphasize that the university experience has been mainly a preparation. Apprenticeship is a much-favoured word in this context. The end result of such attitudes is reductive: it suggests that somehow students are not really people and that their deliberations lack the sanction granted by experience of "real life." The other side of the coin is that graduation is seen as a watershed. For those who are leaving McGill, it is implied that the business of living demands a seriousness of purpose leaving no time for generalized appraisals of man as citizen, of man as part of his society. Too often this is in fact the case and the standards of Canadian public life have suffered accordingly.

Those remaining at McGill as part of a community of teachers and scholars might consider whether their university should be regarded as a preparation or as an actual present reality. University life ought surely to be more a being than a becoming; the real business of living is in the here and now. From this point of view McGill takes on a role more in keeping with the dignity of a great university. It is worth noting the recent tributes paid to the academic community by Professor Hans Morgenthau when he noted its re-entry into public life in the form of the teach-ins that swept the colleges in the United States over the past weeks.

For those who are leaving, there is a heavier responsibility. One of the best ways to honour McGill's good name is by conscious involvement in the life of the community, an involvement that runs to something more than charity drives and bake sales. Never has public life needed so desperately an injection of informed, critical thinking. Both nationally and internationally the great need is for awareness on the part of everyone; it is not too much to say that it is a matter of life and death.

On a national scale, our institutions need reviving. We recall, for example, the disrepute in which parliament is held and the barrage of criticism levelled at its performance. The point to be made is that such criticism can easily degenerate into a shallow negativism. The way is then left open for experts, special interests, committees, corporation economists to step in and control our affairs. That this trend is already well under way is only too apparent. There is a crisis in our national life which can be solved only by a resolute decision to participate in it at every level.

Internationally, the prospects are equally gloomy. The rule that might is right has once more become the order of the day. And it will require great courage and clear thinking on the part of Canadians to ensure that the world is pulled back from the brink of war.

If these perspectives seem unusually bleak, we can only plead the temper of the times. What is encouraging is the growing awareness in Canada that individuals are not as helpless as was once believed. Together with this awareness goes a return to the idea of service as being central to any meaningful existence in our society. Both of these trends are hopeful and encouraging. And we have no doubt that they will be continued by the thousands who are receiving their degrees today.

Morse warns of world hatred for world policemen

Are we really going to take the position that we take it upon ourselves to police the world in regard to Communist revolutions? We have neither the resources nor the manpower for that police job. If we are to act unilaterally on the basis of this statement by the President and this pledge by the House, I warn the American people from my desk in the Senate today that we shall be drained both in blood and in economic power in the decades immediately ahead.

In my judgement, the vote the Senate will cast tomorrow can be described as a vote of destiny for the United States; but it will be a vote of destiny that will start the decline of this Republic, as great powers before us in the history of mankind declined after they too became drunk with military power. I say sadly and solemnly, but out of deep conviction, that today my Government stands before the world drunk with military power. My Government, apparently, has come to the conclusion that because of military power its dictates around the world will have to be obeyed.

What We Cannot Destroy

That power will be challenged, and I believe we are now headed into decades of turmoil and strife. We shall win one military victory after another; we shall destroy cities, industrial installations, and nuclear installations; we shall kill by the millions. But in my judgement, that course of action will lay a foundation of hatred on the part of the colored races of the world against the American people. In due course of time, those installations will be rebuilt, not only on material foundations of intense hatred by Asians for the people of the United States. That hatred will even be inherited by generations of American boys and girls 50, 75, 100 — yes, 200 years from now. It will be a foundation of intense Asiatic hatred that will eventually vent its vengeance upon future generations of American boys and girls.

I am satisfied that there is a growing tide of deep concern on the part of increasing millions of fellow Americans about the mistaken policy that the President and Congress are following by acting outside the framework of international law, making war on a unilateral basis, and killing, killing, and killing human beings who, even though they are enemies, are also children of God Almighty.

Mr. President, I say sadly that, in my judgement, Senators who vote "yea" tomorrow for the joint resolution will have voted for an undeclared war and for the continuation of an undeclared war. They will be voting, in my judgement, for an increased draft. They will be voting for the use of nuclear weapons if the President so desires. They will be voting for thousands and thousands of American casualties in the war that I am satisfied will result on a massive basis if we continue our policy in Asia. They will be voting for all that Goldwater stood for in the recent presidential election.

This administration knows and states, but not publicly, that we cannot defeat Red China with airpower. We cannot defeat Red China with bombings, conventional or nuclear. Therefore, they are preparing to meet Red China on the ground, with American troops. How many? To begin with, a minimum of 300,000. As Professor Morgenthau, of Chicago University, said when I lectured at that institution not long ago, we shall have to start with 3 million. Hundreds of thousands will come back to the United States in coffins in the first 18 months.

If China Enters The War

Let me say to my colleagues and from my desk, to the American people today: Continue this escalation, and if Red China moves on the ground and we move in with 300,000 men, plus hundreds of thousands more as that war bogs down, in my judgement, we shall have performed a criminal act against the history of mankind, when it is so unnecessary. Many Members of Congress seem to think he (the President) is doing the best he can, but what he is doing is building up massive world resentment among the very people we have been saying for many years we want to win over to the cause of freedom.

Mr. President, are you ready to tell the American people that if this course of action brings this country into conflict with China, and even possibly Red Russia, you are ready for a nuclear war? Are you ready to fight a nuclear war over the issues that have arisen in Vietnam? I am satisfied that the overwhelming majority of the American people will repudiate you if this is what you are willing to do.

Mr. President, the American people have only one instrument that can prevent a misguided, misadvised, misinformed President from committing an incredible blunder — a blunder that will destroy all the confidence in America that has been built up since World War II — that instrument is the Senate of the United States. But we are not even able to say "go slow", even though I would guess that half or more of the Members of this body know in their minds that the President is wrong.

Let me say to Senators who claim that they intend to be consulted again before there is another escalation of the war: You are being consulted right now. This is the President's consultation. When the President has this consultation under his belt, he is going to announce the landing of thousands more of American troops in Vietnam. When he starts sending those hundreds of thousands of troops into Asia, the moment the Chinese start moving on the ground — that is exactly a part of the war plans — he will cite the pending joint resolution and the resolution of last August which give him that authority.

By Senator Wayne Morse

Ed. note: This article is excerpted from Senator Morse's two speeches in the Senate, May 5 and 6, in the interests of promoting the "re-entry into public life of the academic community" discussed in today's editorial.

La fête des patriotes

I. LES CHEVALIERS DE L'INDEPENDANCE

The sun beats down on a bleak, harbour-side street. Clumps of hard-faced men in suits watch impassively from the sidewalk as Reggie Chartrand and his black-jerseyed Chevaliers are bundled into a large paddy-wagon, bereft of flags and placards, seconds after they appear on the street. The sides of the wagon heave, thumped defiantly from inside, then subside as two policemen climb into the back. Unsubdued, the Chevaliers appear at the front window, making the "V" sign.

A block away, 50 constables drawn up beside the police station relax and break into groups. A skinny, yellow-jerseyed police photographer takes leisurely portraits of on-looking Daily photographer and reporters. The Daily takes a leisurely shot of the photographer. He stares at us coldly through dark glasses. The hard-faced men from the periphery of Chartrand's demonstration appear, walking briskly toward the station.

II. LAFONTAINE PARK

A parade winds among family groups and other non-ideological observers of the Queen's birthday. Trees, grass, lakes and friendly smiling policemen. The demonstrators are young (ranging from about 15 to 20 years old), vociferous, unsophisticated. One climbs onto the base of the statue of Indian-fighter Dollard des Ormeaux carrying a fleur-de-lis, is promptly grabbed-at by a policeman. He elegantly reverses his banner, presents the pointed tip of the flagpole. The constable retires gracefully and the flag is propped in Dollard's arm.

The Parti Pris contingent arrives. Older, more reserved and sophisticated, many dressed in a consciously intellectual or eccentric style. Parti Pris signs and banners burgeon. The police photographer has arrived and is faithfully recording the scene. Many of the plainclothesmen are fresh from duty at Chartrand's demonstration. A parade forms, heading south along Amherst Street.

III. THE MARCH

As the parade moves onto the road two policemen and two plainclothesmen try to contain it on the sidewalk. A scuffle erupts and — setting the pattern for police-demonstrator encounters — the crowd breaks in confusion, then regroups. More policemen pile into the melee. A burly demonstrator heaves them out, one by one. The demonstrator at the bottom of the pile scuttles into the crowd.

The parade — about 500 youths, Parti Pris members and the occasional Chevalier, followed by a police guard of honour — moves down Amherst Street, arms linked indiscriminately. Shouts of "Québec oui, Ottawa non", "Québec pour les ouvriers", "Révolution". A Murray Hill tourist bus surges up the hill through the crowd. Outraged, elderly tourist faces blossom at every window. Flowerlike patterns of broken glass have appeared on several panes as well.

Nearing St. Catherine Street, the marchers become suddenly aware that the group of policemen bringing up the rear has become more dense; several paddywagons have appeared; an equally dense crowd of policemen is advancing from the St. Catherine intersection. Again the crowd breaks; the policemen move through it selecting the leaders with cool efficiency. Flags and banners are confiscated and those carrying them are herded into the wagons.

IV. DEMONSTRATORS DISBAND

Most of the marchers return to Lafontaine Park, where the St. Jean Baptiste Society is now presiding. Student leader Richard Guay, called on unexpectedly to speak, objects to using a statue of Dollard — "a fascist" — as a rallying point for separatist demonstrations. The speeches continue, mostly unheard as loudspeakers give out.

Twelve helmeted policemen speed eastward on motorcycles along Sherbrooke Street toward the Park.

A McGill guard and a policeman chat, leaning on the statue of Queen Victoria outside RVC. Posted there early in the day to guard it from the ravages of Chartrand's followers, they have been rendered obsolete.

Two busloads of policemen clear Phillips Square. The uninitiated observer would be at a loss if called upon to point out possible dangerous characters, but this problem doesn't arise because uninitiated observers are moved on, too. The police photographer is still snapping busily.

A row of mounted police on skittish palominos watch sternly as one of the day's more meagre turnouts parades once around Victoria Square. The last of the marchers trickle down Craig, followed by police until they break up near the La Presse Building.

V. AFTERMATH

Arrests continue until past midnight in the violent aftermath of demonstrations themselves marked by nothing more violent than the exploding of a few small fire-crackers. Montreal's police force mops up hooligans and rowdies with the same efficiency they used against separatist demonstrators.

Marcel Faribault, president of "Le Trust Général du Canada", reveals that telephones were kept ringing on the Montreal bourse Monday by New York investors with qualms about the Quebec bond issue. He says demonstrations "worry" foreign investors.

Justice Minister Claude Wagner, once prominent for his denunciations of corruption in high places, rails against demonstrators and vandals alike for their lack of "respect for private property". He promises, in the classic phrase, that he "will not stand idly by..."

Eighty persons are now facing charges of participating in an "illegal assembly" — punishable by a $500 fine and/or six months in jail — as well as the routine offenses of disturbing the peace, resisting arrest, and assaulting police.

It is the first time the charge has been invoked in Quebec — "but it won't be the last".

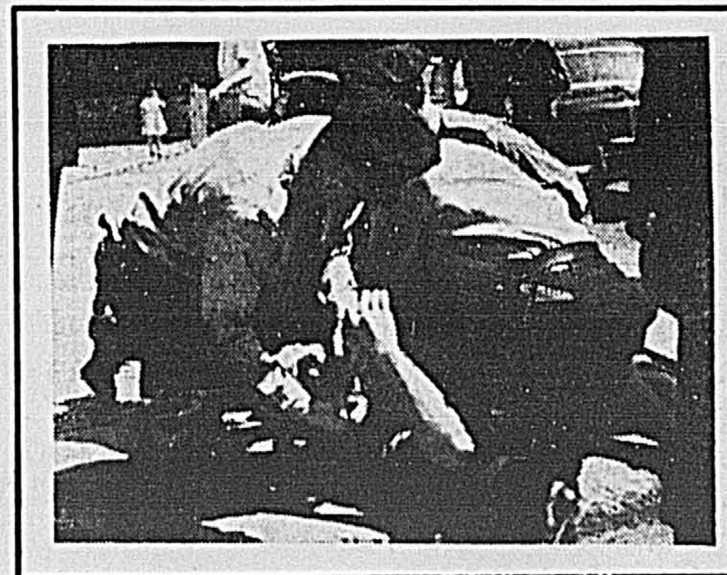

* * *

In a recent article, the editor of Cité Libre listed a number of manifestations of the "réaction tranquille" now making itself felt in Quebec: the appointment of Wagner, firing of Pelletier, establishment of Aujourd'hui Québec, the Le Soleil firings, and Claude Ryan's attack on le mouvement laïque.

It now seems clear after the Faribault revelations regarding uneasy investors that Wagner's instructions were to prevent demonstrations as such. It is legitimate to wonder whether damage would have occurred had the police followed the standard procedure in most countries of marching with the demonstrators. In one sense, the battle lines were drawn by the police. But then, they had their orders...

Six Strong and Stupid Students for summer months.

Strong enough to be of use working as handy-men on a farm, stupid enough to work for $10 a week plus bed and board.

A group of students already acquainted preferred — so that little time will be wasted establishing pecking order.

This will be of special interest to those who would like to get in on the ground floor for inexpensive accommodation in the Jay Peak skiing area next winter.

SPRING - SUMMER

EACH HIS OWN UNIVERSITY...

In an aerial view of Montreal, the green square of McGill campus, dwarfed by the darker green mass of the Mountain stretching up from Fletcher's Field, shrinks to pocket-handkerchief-size. To the little boys who live on Shuter and Lorne and Durocher and Milton, who learnt to play football in front of the Physics Building, and build snowmen on the soccer field, it may seem as large as Central Park.

To summertime passers-by on Sherbrooke it is an oasis whose foliage holds out a promise of shade from as far away as Stanley Street. To mothers and nursemaids in almost every season it is the best spot for watching or wheeling baby carriages. To construction companies it means a dependable source of income. To parents and old grads, it is a source of pride and satisfaction. To professors, it is a place to keep a car. To hundreds of pigeons, it is home. To any given student, the campus and the things that happen there represent the university's influence in his life.

All the people who feed the pigeons, walk on the grass, or enter any of the ever-growing number of buildings belong there: the campus belongs to Montreal as well as to McGill. But what of those who have paid five hundred dollars in order to belong there for yet another semester, who are notified to "keep your student card with you at all times: you may be requested to produce it, and if you cannot comply, liable to a fine"? To those others, the meaning of the word "McGill", the associations of the word "McGill" as a concrete physical entity, can have as many variations as the word "home".

To most students, the campus is the same — the library, the cloakrooms, the lab, the coffee machine, the PSCA, the Bookstore, the Arts Building, the flag, the new Engineering Building, the statue in the dell, the hill, the residence, the gym — but to all students, it is also different. All these familiar landmarks are merely vague boundaries, a loose framework, within which to hold a world. It is a world that only one may inhabit, a microcosm. Each is his own university — many may share a boundary, but never the terrain it surrounds.

The boundaries which are held in common usually include a small section of the outside world. Most students regard as part of McGill many places which have no share in the charter of The Royal Institution for the Advancement of Learning. For some the definition may attach to a fraternity house; for a large minority it is the Union. For others it is the Mansfield Tavern. For out-of-towners, inextricably caught up with the University, in most of their minds it is all of Montreal.

The events which take place in the world which any student inhabits, the people who figure in it, are as difficult to pinpoint as the exact details of their setting. The important occurrences in the lives of a very few at McGill are all catalogued neatly by the official recorders, the Old McGill and the Daily. For the majority, the occasions they commemorate, the events they describe, merely serve to fix in mind the important individual anniversaries, through the coincidences of time and place to provide a sort of timetable in which can be listed all the essential stages taken toward the final aim.

The day FORGE came out might have been memorable for the editor of FORGE, but it may have stuck in someone else's mind only because it coincided with the last day of a term-paper extension. And as long as that can happen, as long as it is possible for one student to sink himself utterly in extra-curricular activities, for another to spend all his free time in the library, for a third to go home to Pointe Claire every day at three o'clock; for some to eat lunch in the Arts Building common room and others to dine at the same time every day with all their fraternity brothers; for some to go on every football trip and others not even to realize a game has been played (or both) — as long as circumstances make it possible for all this to be so, then "a university career" can hope to offer something to everyone who ever reaches the point of embarking upon it. For McGill is not just one university, it is nine thousand.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR 1965 GRID SEASON

by JOHN SKINNER

Although the 1965 football season is still many months away, the Athletics Department has not been idle in its efforts to field a winning team.

Director of athletics, Harry Griffiths, recently announced the acquisition of several promising prospects for next year's Redmen. Wayne Snowman of Springfield International University, a 250 pound tackle, tops the list. Snowman has been accepted for study towards his MA and will likely give Redman regulars Dick Feidler and Al Jenner a good fight for the starting position at tackle.

DICK FEIDLER

The centre slot will be a toss-up between several hopefuls. Returning Redmen Mike Bunting and Murray Orlando rate as favourites but will not have the starting positions sewn up. Don Ferraro, a newcomer from W. Post College in New York and former Indian Walt Vaughan cannot be overlooked as possible starters. But whoever plays first string, the Redmen will be strong at centre.

Don Taylor and Jim Dickie are returning at end along with newcomer Keith Mills from Bishop's. Mills, a two way end, comes to McGill with rave notices and cannot be discounted. He will be entering medicine.

In the backfield, the Redmen find themselves with one of the best halfback combinations in the

OQAA. Eric Walter, a perennial all-star and George Poirier are both returning to give the Red squad an extremely effective scoring punch. Poirier was sidelined with injuries most of the year but showed flashes of brilliance when he got on the field. In addition, former Redman Sal Lovecchio is returning. Lovecchio played senior ball two years ago but was ineligible last year because of a complicated rule regarding transfer from St. Francis Xavier.

Pete Howlett will be returning to fill in the fullback slot but quarterback duties will be taken by one of four prospects. Last year's starting quarterback Glen St. John will be back as will his back-up man Rich Ripstein. In addition, former Indians Skip Kerner and Robin McNeill will be out for the job and will provide strong fill-ins should St. John or Ripstein be injured.

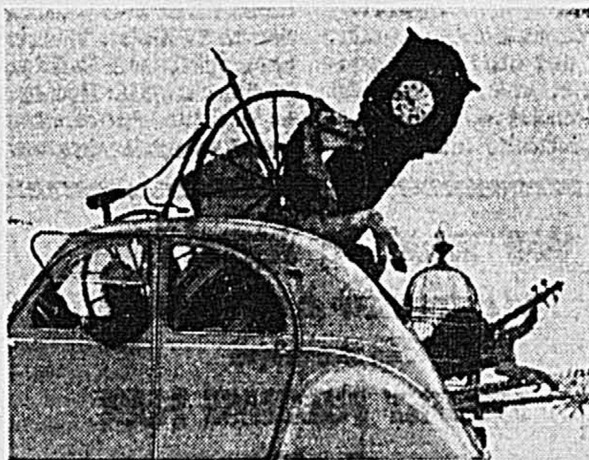

O.K.
SO IT'S UGLY, But...

but it's freedom . . . it gives you the key to the countryside!

but it's simple and winsome, the car for the adventuresome!

but nothing is too BIG or too long . . . carries, hauls . . . anything, anywhere, EVERYWHERE!

but it's rugged, leave it outdoors all year-round!

because it costs you nothing, nothing for maintenance, nothing for fuel, nothing for insurance;
because it doesn't need a highway, goes anywhere and everywhere, over the worst roads, over snow, and ice, and sand; because it's so liveable, it's so loveable; the seats are so comfortable, the top is convertible, and the heater will warm your heart (and the rest of you)!

because it is at your service, because you are not at her's!

JIM DICKIE

At flanker, McGill will again likely do more than hold its own. Returning Redmen Chris Mapp, Brian Pilgrim and Ron Barrie are no strangers to OQAA play. Barrie is also a punter of some note but will likely have to fight former Indian Gus Curry for the job. Curry averaged 41 yards a kick for the Indians last year and is rated high on coaching lists.

Defensive half will also see many candidates. Marty Wenger will be back along with Wade Kenney, Mike Peterson and Bob Berke. Berke starred at corner linebacker last year and Kenney and Peterson have the experience to give the Redmen depth in the defensive backfield.

Griffiths has also announced a number of coaching changes to go into effect next year. The new Redmen coach is Tom Mooney (see page 20). He will be assisted by Dave Copp, Redmen hockey coach and former football assistant and John Roberts, former Indian defensive coach. Roberts will likely handle the defensive chores next year.

COLIN ADAIR LEAVES RAQUETS

by ELLY ALBOIM

Colin John Adair, one of the outstanding athletes in McGill's long tradition of sport, graduates today. He is this year's winner of the Forbes' Trophy, an award given annually to the season's best sportsman and thus joins the company of such past varsity greats as Willie Lambert, Dick Hinton, and Leo Konyk.

Adair is regarded in many circles as the one of the best college squash players in North America. He defeated the best in the United States at the American Invitational Intercollegiate Tourney in New York last December when he copped that title.

A native of Montreal, Adair began his squash career only six years ago and credits his brother Ross, a Montreal doctor, with his development as a champion. Adair says of brother Ross, "He helped me most simply by encouraging me."

Adair intends to study medicine here next year and to continue competing in his chosen sport. However, the demands of medical study will force a drastic curtailment of practise and training time. He estimated that he will have to cut down "about 95%" regular squash sessions. Adair intends to limit his future competition to doubles matches with his brother.

His has been a fantastic story of success in squash annals. At first entry into competitive play, Adair found himself pitted against players 3 or 4 years older than he and much more experienced. In order to hold his own, he undertook a rigid program of intensive training.

Tom Mooney new football coach

by DAVE McFARLANE

Tom Mooney will coach the Redmen Football and Basketball squads next year. Mooney replaces Bill Bewley, who guided the football Redmen to one OQAA League championship during his three year tenure.

J.G. Notman, chairman of the Athletics Board stated, "We feel that Tom can do a good job for McGill and are looking forward to a happy association with him during the coming years".

Mooney has been hired on a full-time basis and will serve on the staff of the Department of Athletics commencing July 1, 1965. The acquisition of a full-time football coach, which the Board felt would serve the best interests of McGill, marks a return to the full-time coaching scheme ended in 1957. Larry Sullivan was the last full-time mentor while Bruce Coulter and Bewley have served on a part-time basis ever since that time.

From 1956-60 Mooney was a member of the staff of the Ontario Agricultural College, now known as the University of Guelph, where he taught Physical Education and coached the Senior football and basketball teams which met such competition as McMaster, Waterloo, Ottawa, RMC, and Carleton. The OAC teams which Mooney coached won two championships and placed second on two occasions.

Mooney was also a successful basketball coach at OAC with his record showing that some of his teams were the best that school has seen in many years. In 1957, with Tom serving as assistant wrestling coach, the Aggies won the OQAA Wrestling Championship.

During the three-year tenure at Guelph, Mooney was line coach and player for the Kitchener Waterloo Dutchmen under Harvey Johnson, who now is with the Buffalo Bills of the American Football League. The K-W Dutchmen won three championships.

Tom has had considerable coaching experience in football, basketball, and wrestling at the High School level.

Mooney previously applied for the part-time football coaching job after Coulter had resigned to become Athletics Director of Bishop's University but Bewley was chosen. When he heard that the position was open through some twenty-four letters sent to him by various friends, he again applied as full-time coach.
